Barring a reprieve, Washington native Erika Lopez and her husband Juan were to be deported.

She took residents by surprise and terrified several neighbors.

But Erika and Juan have lived a quiet, working-class life in Mexico, where the cost of living is lower than in the United States.

In 1980, the median household income was $23,000, and the average home cost $80,000.

In today’s dollars, that’s about $75,000, or about $34,000 in 1990 dollars, before adjusting for inflation.

Yes, it’s different, and often rougher, world for millennials than it was for earlier generations of young adults in the U.S.

Prices are creeping up instead of zooming, with inflation.

For young adults in the U.S., a $230,000 home is about 11 times what a single-family home here, on today’s dollars (or about $75,000) in 1990 dollars, before adjusting for inflation.
